Dear [Applicant's Name],

Thank you for your interest in the [Graduate Program Name] at [University/Institution Name]. We appreciate the time and effort you invested in your application.

After careful consideration, we regret to inform you that we are unable to offer you admission to our program for the [upcoming academic year/term]. The selection process was highly competitive, and, unfortunately, we had to make difficult decisions among a large pool of qualified applicants.

We understand this news may be disappointing. We encourage you to continue pursuing your academic and professional goals. In the spirit of supporting your future applications, we have outlined several tips that may strengthen your candidacy for graduate programs:

- Review Program Prerequisites: Ensure that your academic background and coursework align closely with the specific requirements of your desired program.
- Enhance Academic Credentials: Consider ways to improve your GPA or acquire additional knowledge through relevant courses, certifications, or independent study.
- Obtain Strong Recommendation Letters: Request letters from academic or professional references who can speak in detail about your qualifications, achievements, and potential for success in graduate study.
- Gain Relevant Research or Work Experience: Participate in internships, research projects, or work experiences related to your field to strengthen your practical expertise and demonstrate your commitment.
- Craft a Compelling Personal Statement: Clearly articulate your academic interests, career goals, and reasons for pursuing graduate study. Highlight experiences that have prepared you for advanced work in the field.

We encourage you to persevere and refine your application materials. Many applicants who do not receive admission on their first attempt go on to achieve success in subsequent application cycles.

Thank you again for your interest in our program. We wish you the very best in your future academic and professional endeavors.

Sincerely,

[Admissions Committee or Program Director]
