

Dear Uncle Ravi,

I hope this letter finds you in great health and high spirits! I've been meaning to write to you ever since our wonderful family reunion last weekend, and finally found a free moment to sit down and share all the memorable moments with you.

The whole house felt alive with laughter and chatter-just the way I remember it back in the day when we all used to gather. Aunt Meera's signature biryani was, as always, the star of the show! Even dad couldn't stop himself from going for second helpings, despite his usual watchful eye over calories. The little ones put on an impromptu dance performance that had everyone in splits. You would've loved seeing how much Riya has grown-she's now leading the "cousins' club" with so much confidence!

This time, Grandpa looked especially happy. He took out his old photo album and started narrating stories behind each picture. We all sat around him for hours, listening and laughing at tales from your school days. He kept asking about you and wished you could have joined us in person. We missed your classic jokes and the cheerful energy you always bring to these gatherings.

It's moments like these that make me realize how precious our family bonds are. Even though you're miles away, you're always a part of our celebrations and memories. Please let us know when you're planning to visit next-we're already making a list of your favorite dishes!

Looking forward to hearing back from you soon. Don't stay a stranger-drop a note whenever you can. Give my love to Aunt Sunita and Priya!

With lots of love,

Your niece,
Priya
