

Hey Sam,

I hope this letter finds you well! I have some super exciting news to share-our family just welcomed a brand new member!

Last Thursday, Aunt Emma gave birth to a beautiful baby girl. Her name is Lily Grace, and she's absolutely adorable! Everyone here is over the moon-especially Uncle John. They can't stop smiling, and you can really feel the happiness in the house.

Lily has the cutest little nose and a ton of dark hair. She's mostly quiet so far, except when she wants her milk! I got a chance to hold her yesterday, and it was an amazing feeling. The best part is watching Mom and Dad fuss over her-they totally melt every time she yawns or stretches her tiny fingers.

The house is a little noisier now (lots of cooing and baby cries!), but it feels fuller and warmer with her around. We all take turns helping out, especially with changing diapers and rocking Lily to sleep. It's definitely an adjustment, but having her here brings so much joy.

I wish you could visit soon and meet her in person. She can't wait to meet her cool cousin! Hope you're doing great over there. Write back soon and let me know what's new with you!

Lots of love,
Alex
