Dear [Friend's Name],

Hey! I hope this letter finds you in great health and high spirits. It's been a while since we last caught up, and so much has happened here that I just had to write and share it all with you!

First and foremost, you wouldn't believe what happened at our school last week. There was this amazing cultural fest, and our class participated in the drama competition. Guess what? We took first place! You know how nervous I get, but I actually managed my lines without tripping over my words. It was such a rush-wish you were here to see it!

On the weekend, Riya hosted a get-together at her place. Almost everyone from our old group showed up, and we spent the evening playing games, reminiscing, and of course, eating way too much food. We all missed you and kept talking about the fun times we had last year. It really isn't the same without you.

Life at home is pretty much the same. Mom sends her love (and asked if you're eating enough veggies in the hostel!). Dad keeps asking when you'll visit next. Oh, and Lucky, our dog, managed to sneak onto my bed last night and wouldn't let me sleep-some things just never change!

The weather here has been quite unpredictable-one day it's hot, the next it pours like crazy. Remember how we used to race home before the rain started?

Anyway, that's most of my news for now. I really hope you're enjoying your new city and courses. Do write back whenever you get a chance and tell me all about your adventures. I miss our endless chats and can't wait to catch up in person soon.

Take care and lots of love,
