

Dear Grandma and Grandpa,

I hope this letter finds you both in the best of health and spirits. I am writing to share some wonderful news with you-my recent exam results have been announced, and I am overjoyed to let you know that I have performed exceptionally well!

Your constant support and encouragement have played a major role in this achievement. I am truly grateful for all the love and motivation you have given me throughout my studies. Your phone calls, kind words, and little reminders to take care of myself kept me going during stressful times.

I am proud to make you both happy with my academic performance. Your stories about working hard and never giving up inspired me to keep pushing forward, even when things were tough. Knowing that you believed in me gave me strength and confidence.

As I look to the future, I am determined to continue working hard and make you even prouder in the years to come. I hope to achieve more milestones and create memories that we can all celebrate together.

Thank you again for everything. I love you both very much and can't wait to see you soon and share more happy moments.

With lots of love,

[Your Name]
