

Hey Sam!

I hope you're doing great! I couldn't wait to tell you about some super exciting news-there's an awesome holiday festival happening in our town next weekend, and I really want you to come with me!

The festival starts on Friday, June 15th, and goes all the way through Sunday at the Central Park grounds. There's going to be live music, food stalls with all kinds of treats (I heard the caramel apples are a must-try!), and a bunch of fun games and competitions. Remember how we rocked the sack race last year? I'm sure we could win again!

Oh, and guess what-there's also a fireworks show on Saturday night. The organizers promised it'll be bigger and better than ever. Plus, we'll get to try that new ice-skating rink they've set up just for the festival. How cool is that?

I'm so pumped to go, but it would be a thousand times better if you came along. Let me know if you're free, and I can grab tickets for both of us. Can't wait to make more awesome memories together!

Text me soon,
Jess
