

Sample Rejection Letter for Manuscript Submission – “Poor Methodology”

Dear [Author Name],

Thank you for submitting your manuscript entitled "[Manuscript Title]" to [Journal Name]. We appreciate the time and effort you have invested in your research and in preparing this submission.

After careful consideration and thorough review by our editorial team and external referees, we regret to inform you that we are unable to accept your manuscript for publication in our journal.

The primary reason for this decision centers on significant concerns regarding the methodology employed in your study. In particular, our reviewers noted the following methodological issues:

- Insufficient justification for the chosen research design.
- Inadequate description and validation of data collection instruments and procedures.
- Lack of appropriate controls or comparison groups.
- Unclear or inappropriate statistical analyses.
- Limited sample size, raising concerns about the generalizability of the findings.

We recommend that you address these points by strengthening your research design, clearly detailing your methodological approach, and providing robust analyses to support your conclusions, should you choose to submit your work elsewhere or consider future submissions.

Please understand that our decision reflects the high methodological standards required by [Journal Name] to ensure the publication of reliable and impactful research. We encourage you to continue refining your work and welcome future submissions that better meet these standards.

We thank you again for considering [Journal Name] as an outlet for your research and wish you every success in your future scholarly endeavors.

Sincerely,
