

Dear [Relative's Name],

I hope this letter finds you in good spirits. I've been thinking about you so much since your surgery and wanted to check in to see how you're feeling lately. I know the past days must have been a bit tough, but I'm really proud of the strength and determination you've shown during your recovery.

Everyone here has been asking about you and sends their love. How are you managing with everything? I hope you're not in too much pain and that each day is bringing just a little bit more comfort. I can only imagine how challenging it must be to take things slowly, especially when you're usually so active. Remember, it's perfectly okay to lean on others and take all the rest you need right now.

If you need anything at all, whether it's a chat to pass the time, some help around the house, or even just some good old-fashioned company, please don't hesitate to let me know. I'm here for you one hundred percent.

Hang in there and keep focusing on the small victories-every little step forward is worth celebrating! We're all cheering you on and can't wait to see you fully recovered. Until then, just take it easy and know you're surrounded by love and support.

Looking forward to hearing back from you soon. Take care and get plenty of rest!

With all my love,
[Your Name]
